ELKS AND PYTHIANS.

National Meeting of These Two Popular Organizations Are Now In Session.

FORMER IN SALT LAKE CITY

The Street Parade Was One Which Attracted Large Numbers of Spectators Along the Route.

PYTHIANS MEET IN SAN FRANCISCO

SALT LAKE, Utah, August 13.—Eight thousand Elks, from every state in the union, gathered in the great tabernacle of the Mormon church Tuesday to attend the formal opening of the annual reunion of the grand lodge of Elks. A large proportion of those present were clad in the white and purple uniform of the order. Hon. O. W. Powers, of Salt Lake, as master of ceremonies, called the meeting to order and introduced Governor Wells, of Utah, who delivered an address of welcome.

All night and all day trains loaded with Elks continued to arrive until the streets resembled a kaleidoscope in color and it is estimated that nearly 20,000 visitors are in the city.

Preceding the opening meeting was the civic and military parade which marked the formal opening of the three days' reunion. In this were included a batalion of infantry and two batteries of artillery from Fort Douglass, and a troop of cavalry and battery A, light artillery, National Guard of Utah. Then came uniformed members of all Utah lodges of Elks and dozens of other civic, military and fraternal organizations in uniforms, accompanied by a score of bands and many picturesque floats.

Perfect weather prevails and the parade was witnessed by thousands of people who formed a solid mass on both sides of the streets.

The exercises at the auditorium were brief, though impressive. After prayer and a selection on the great organ, Grand Exalted Ruler Pickett, of Waterloo, delivered his annual address.

The first meeting of the grand lodge was held in the assembly hall Tuesday afternoon, when the actual work of the grand lodge began.

The meeting of the grand lodge was held in the assembly hall Tuesday afternoon and after the annual report of Grand Exalted Ruler Pickett had been delivered and other reports presented, the election of grand officers for the ensuing year was taken up. This resulted as follows :

Grand Exalted Ruler, George A. Cronk, Omaha; grand leading knight, W. B. Vrock, Lexington, Ky.; grand loyal knight, Judge A. H. Pickens, Denver; grand lecturing knight, Joseph E. Henning, Anderson, Ind.; grand secretary, George Reynolds, Saginaw, Mich.; grand treasurer, E. S. Orris, Meadville, Pa.; grand tyler, Charles Kauffman, Hoboken, N. J.; grand trustee, J. D. O'Shea, Boston.

Most of the elections were by acclamation, there being contests for only one or two of the minor offices.

At this afternoon's meeting of the grand lodge the most interesting fight of the reunion will take place, when the question of the next annual meeting place will be decided. Baltimore and Saratoga Springs are making a vigorous fight for the honor, and the result cannot be foretold.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 13.—The biennial convention of the Knights of Pythias was formally opened Tuesday in the Palace hotel. Nearly 150 delegates were present. There were few vacant seats and these will be filled today. The absent supreme representatives have all telegraphed that they will be here as soon as the delayed ship specials shall be able to move.

After the welcoming addresses and responses were made the supreme lodge went into secret session.

At the afternoon session reports were read. Supreme Chancellor Fethers, in his annual report, said that on December 31, 1901, the order had 140,138 members.

—Gabel, the unfortunate young man who was burned at Howard the other day, had the leg, through which the red hot bar of iron plunged, amputated at the knee Saturday afternoon. It is believed his hands can be saved.

Husband's Affection Deprives Wife of a Visit to Italy.

The wife of a well-to-do Italian who lives near Reynoldsville decided several months ago to cross the sea and visit relatives in sunny Italy, expecting to be absent several months. Her husband gave his consent three times and preparations were made that many times for the trip, but the woman has not gone to Italy yet because her husband thinks he cannot live without her long enough to make the trip The first time the woman was ready to go her husband vetoed the trip before she left the house. In the course of two or three weeks the man thought he would let his wife go and she got as far as the railroad station that time before he said no. Last week the man bought his wife a ticket for New York city, kissed her good bye and the woman started on her journey. It looked this time as if the woman was sure of her visit to Italy, but the following morning the Italian sent a telegram to New York for her to return from there. He waited around the station all day, sending three or four telegrams, and not having received an answer when the 6:12 train arrived that evening he jumped on the train without a ticket and started for New York. The woman received one of the telegrams and she returned to Reynoldsville, passing her husband some place on his way to New York. It was the woman's turn to use the telegraph wires and she spent a half day waiting around the P. R. R. station here to get an answer from her husband. He returned to Reynoldsville the following day and he was as glad to see his wife as if she had been in Italy a year.

Examinations for the Navy.

A civil service examination for a midshipman at the naval academy Annapolis, Md., was begun at Williamsport Monday morning and concluded Wednesday evening. Three young men are competing, as follows : Wayne J. Coveney, of Mardin, Tioga county; Edwin S. Knecht, of Parvin, Clinton county, and Howard Grove of Jersey Shore, Lycoming county.

The results of the examination will be reported to the navy department and the brightest competitor will undoubtedly be selected.

The first day's examination was in punctuation and capitals, grammar, geography, United States history. The second day in arithmetic and algebra, and the third day in geometry.

Evil Minded Persons Destroy Man's Property.

Last week some evil disposed person, or persons, damaged property of Daniel Paul, a farmer of the east end of Nittany Valley, to a considerable extent. About two acres of green oats were cut down with a scythe in the center of a large field, and a vacant house on the farm was entered and ninety panes of glass in the windows were broken. The window sashes were broken, paper torn from the walls and a door was broken from its hinges. Mr. Paul has no clue to the perpetrators of the mischief.

Opportunity for Young Men.

The standard steel car company has decided to employ no foreigners, except in the most unimportant capacity. The great plant of the company at Butler is nearing completion and will employ thousands of men. Of unskilled men 1500 can find employment, and a search for young men will be made to fill these places. Country boys are especially wanted and excellent opportunities will be afforded for advancement.

Christian Church Conference.

The quarterly conference and meeting of the Church of Christ of Central Pennsylvania will be held in the Christian church in Lock Haven on the 18th, 19th and 20th inst. The opening session will be held on Monday evening, the 18th inst., at 7:30 o'clock, when a sermon on "Intemperance vs. Christianity" will be delivered by Rev. H. J. Lunger. The closing sermon will be delivered Wednesday evening by Rev. C. A. Brady.

—O. Thomas Switzer, of Philipsburg, and William J. Robinson, of Philadelphia, started Saturday for British Columbia and Alaska, to inaugurate operations upon the valuable gold territory discovered by Mr. Switzer, for the British-American Dredging company, the corporation organized in Pennsylvania to provide the capital for the development and work. Mr. Robinson represents Benj. C. Warnick & Co., the Philadelphia brokers who financed the corporation. Messrs. Switzer and Robinson will journey directly to San Francisco where they will secure their heavy dredging machinery and have it sent by vessel to Skagway whence it will be shipped by rail to the company's land. They expect to have their plant in operation soon.

HEAVY RAINS FELL.

Jupiter Pluvius Made Things Unfavorable for the Soldiers at Shenandoah.

THEY REMAINED IN CAMP

Fourteenth Week of the Strike Began Sunday and the Miners Have Settled Down to a Siege.

COLLIERIES MAY START THIS WEEK

SHENANDOAH, August 11.—Heavy rains fell here yesterday making things disagreeable for the troops in camp on the hill outside of Shenandoah. Despite the inclement weather, however, there was a large number of visitors in camp from the surrounding towns. None of the soldiers left the camp except the two companies that are on provost guard duty at the two railway stations in the town proper. Notwithstanding it being Sunday, the men were permitted to continue target practice yesterday. Much interest was shown in the work of the soldiers by the visitors. It was stated by the officers of the Twelfth regiment that the record made by the Twelfth regiment team is the best ever made by a rifle team of the Pennsylvania National Guard. The general average was 87. The team will go to the Mount Gretna tournament on August 19, where a team of fifteen men will be selected from all the regiments of the state to compete in the national tournament at Seagirt, N. J.

The signal corps also put in several hours during the day perfecting the signal system. It was estimated yesterday that the total cost to the state for transporting and maintaining the troops for the first ten days they have been in the field was $35,000. This includes the pay of officers and men and cost of ammunition.

Brigadier General Gobin remained at headquarters all day. He said he had received no information of impending trouble anywhere and knew nothing of any attempt to start collieries. County officials are still endeavoring to arrest persons who were in any way connected with the fatal riot of July 30. It is understood that two foreigners now under arrest charged with rioting will also have to answer the charge of murder.

WILKESBARRE, August 11.—The fourteenth week of the anthracite miners strike began today. President Mitchell is authority for the statement made yesterday that the strikers are in good shape. Contributions to the relief fund are coming in from many quarters now and the dissatisfaction which was first evinced over the distribution of funds has now disappeared and the strikers have settled down to what they believe is going to be a much longer siege than was first anticipated.

A $20,000 contribution from the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is expected by the strikers within the next ten days. It is said 400 lodges will contribute $50 each. Other railway brotherhoods are expected to follow suit. While the strike leaders are inclined to throw cold water on all reports that an attempt may be made to resume mining at an early day in the Wyoming region, it would not be at all surprising should one or two of the mines in this section be started up this week. The same story has been told for weeks past, but there is a well authenticated report in circulation last night that the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company may start up work at its Wanamie colliery some day this week. At the office of the company, however, those in charge refuse to give out any information.

A general review of the whole strike region shows that unless the operators can break the ranks of the strikers by starting up a colliery here and there, the men will be in condition to remain out for some time yet. The amount of relief to be distributed will not satisfy all, but the miners seem to be willing to make some sacrifices in that direction in the hope that eventually they will win.

—M. J. Walker met with quite a serious accident on Thursday afternoon while at work at the Jenkins Iron and Tool Co's works at Howard. He was straightening a heavy wagon tire for the shears when in some manner he had the first finger of the right hand badly smashed.

Married at High Noon.

A very pretty wedding occurred at high noon Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Garman on Buffalo Run, the daughter, Miss Elizabeth May, being married to Mr. John A. Witmer, who also resides at that place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. L. Essinger of the M. E. church.

The bride was attired in blue silk trimmed with white chiffon and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas. Miss Lizzie Witmer, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid. She also wore blue silk with trimmings similar to those worn by the bride. The groom and his best man, James Lutz, each wore the conventional black.

The ceremony took place on the lawn, owing to there being so many guests that the house would not contain them comfortably. There were fully two hundred persons present. After congratulations, every one partook of an elegant wedding breakfast, which comprised all that was good to eat, and was prepared and served in regal style.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents, and they start life's journey with the kindest wishes of their neighbors and friends. Both are estimable young people, the bride accomplished and practical as a farmer's daughter. The groom, an industrious and capable young man, is in the employ of the American Lime and Stone Company.

They left on the afternoon train to spend their honeymoon visiting Atlantic City, Baltimore and Washington, D. C.

Legs as Organs of Hearing.

One of the strangest and most unexpected of the uses to which we could imagine a leg as being put is that of an organ of hearing.

Yet such seems to be one at least of the functions of the forelegs in the cricket and some other allied insects. On the outer side of the tibia a small oval space may be seen in which the strong armature which covers the rest of the body is reduced to a thin and membraneous condition, making thus a sort of window or drumhead. Communicating with this, inside the leg, are the ends of a nerve, and it can hardly be doubted, therefore, that the whole apparatus constitutes an auditory organ, so that if these legs were amputated the insect would become deaf. When one remembers that crickets are among the noisiest of insects, their incessant chirping being a most shrill and penetrating sound, it cannot be considered strange that distinct organs of hearing should also be present; the sound-producer implies the sound-perceiver, the two functions are complimentary; but still it is remarkable that the foreleg should have been selected as the most suitably site for this important sense.

—On Saturday the Machinists' Union of Williamsport with their families and friends held their first annual picnic at Hecla Park. There were seven coaches filled with people in the train that brought them up. They were accompanied by the Newton band of Williamsport and the Miners' band of Shenandoah. HAVE CUT THE CABLE

Venezuela Revolutionists Apply the Knife Just After Entering Barcelona.

GERMANY TO LAND TROOPS

To Protect the Interests of That Country and Minister Bowen Advises We Follow Suit.

THE TOPEKA NOW ON ITS WAY

WASHINGTON, August 12.—Minister Bowen has cabled the state department from Caracas, Venezuela, that the revolutionists have cut the cable at Barcelona.

Minister Bowen says the cable was cut immediately after the receipt of a message, stating that the revolutionists were entering the city.

Minister Bowen also advised the state department that the Germans intend to land a naval force at Porto Cabello to protect German interests there, which are threatened by the uprising. The minister advised that we follow suit. After a conference between the officials of the state and navy departments, instructions were cabled to Commander Nichols, of the Topeka, to proceed from LaGuayra to Porto Cabello, and to land a naval force in case of attack. The Topeka has already left for Porto Cabello.

The Topeka will probably reach Porto Cabello, which is only a short sail from La Guayra, today. The trouble at Porto Cabello grows out of the uprising which has convulsed Venezuela for some time. It is directed against President Castro, and has kept the country in a state of ferment for many months. Minister Bowen recently sent word that President Castro was leaving for the front with the expectation of fighting a decisive battle with the insurgents.

They have been gathering strength at Porto Cabello. Our consuls at that point sent word recently that the lives of some of the American residents, including members of his family, were imperilled and two of the ladies of the consul's family were taken away in a government ship. Since then there has been no word of a critical condition of affairs, but the advices of to-day indicate that a crisis has been reached.

There appears to be no question as to the right of the German naval forces to land for the protection of German interests. It in no way involves the Monroe doctrine. Germany has been keeping close watch on Venezuela for some months, and at one time contemplated taking a Venezuelan port in order to compel the payment of certain German claims. It was in that connection that the German ambassador at Washington, Dr. Von Hollenben, made inquiry of President Roosevelt and the state department as to whether such a move by Germany, for the sole purpose of collecting a claim and not for the purpose of territorial expansion, would meet with any disfavor by the American government.

The response of the United States left Germany free to act, as the assurance that no territorial extension was intended removed the case from the operation of the Monroe doctrine.

The state department is in receipt of a dispatch from Consul General Gudger, at Panama, reporting that the governor of Panama, and General Herrera, the revolutionary leader, have been in correspondence regarding the establishment of peace and that to this end the governor has appointed three commissioners clothed with power to meet a similar number of men appointed by General Herrera.

THE DAY AT BAILEYVILLE.

Annual Picnic of the P. O. S. of A: Was Largely Attended.

On Saturday Baileyville Driving Park near the little town of the same name in Ferguson township was the scene of one of the largest picnics ever held in that neck of woods.

The day was an ideal one for an outing and it is believed that fully 3000 people were in attendance.

The picnic was given by Washington Camp No 506 Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Baileyville.

The committee in charge and to whom great credit is due for the success of the event were Edward Isenberg, J. H. Musser and F. P. Geis.

During the day there were three games of base ball on the athletic field. Baileyville Driving Park is an ideal place for an outing. There is a splendid pine woods situated on a side hill overlooking the race track and athletic field, whose incline is so gradual as to cause no inconvenience. The race track is a ½ mile track and is in good condition.

The writer in company with Frances Speer of the Gazette enjoyed the pleasure of a dinner in the woods with Capt. W. H. Fry and his very pleasant family. Mrs. Fry and daughter had prepared a most bountiful repast which the hungry scribes did full justice to.

The day throughout proved a most enjoyable one and everyone went home well pleased with their days outing.

The Baileyville band an excellent musical organization rendered delightful music at intervals during the day.

Clearfield's Big Steel Plant.

Contracts have been let for the erection of the big Steel plant at Clearfield. The preliminary operation will cost $200,000. It is the intention to erect 24 puddling furnaces with a capacity of 50 tons of iron and sufficient scrap will be re-rolled to make the daily tonnage 100 tons. It is also the intention to re-roll steel rails into lighter sections, the capacity for this work being about 50 tons a day. The buildings will have a floor space of 70,000 square feet and will be equipped with electric cranes and all of the latest improvements.

To Be Dedicated.

The chapel for the United Brethren congregation at Valley View appointment is now completed and on Sunday, August 24, it will be dedicated. Among the ministers who are expected to be present on that occasion are Presiding Elder Resler, of Tyrone ; Rev. Sparks, of Runville, and Rev. Dillon, of Port Matilda. It is a neat and comfortable chapel, abundantly large to accommodate the people of that community, and a credit to their devotion and zeal in the good cause.

It Insulted Him.

—Friday evening about 9 o'clock Seaford, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shaffer, of Salona, fell from the third story window of their residence, a distance of about 20 feet. The child was leaning against a window screen when it gave way and the little fellow plunged out, falling to the ground. In his descent he struck a clothes line, which broke the force of the fall. It was at first feared the child wa injured and Dr. Painter, of Mill Hall, was called. An examination showed that there were no visible injuries and Saturday Seaford was going about as usual, none the worse for his dizzy plunge through space.

REDEEMING HER SEX

By VENA KENNEDY WILSON

Copyright, 1901, by V. K. Wilson

"Are you sure, madam, you bought nothing in the upholstery department on Thursday?"

"Yes, I am sure."

"Then this receipt for $3.29 was given you for a five dollar deposit?"

"Yes; it must have been. I was here Thursday and paid $5 on a rug, and when I got home I found the receipt was for $3.29."

"Well, just take a chair, and I will look it up."

The head of the department went through a pile of papers before him. A faintly amused contemptuous glance in his eye told the underclerk that he had branded her story "another lie."

In a few minutes he turned to her and said courteously, but coldly:

"Strange; our slip says $5. Now, I will give you a duplicate receipt. I will keep the receipt you gave me for the $3.29. It is of no value to you," looking her in the eye.

"No; oh, no! Of course not. Thank you! I—I—knew I had paid the $5."

After she had left he took his way with a smile to the upholstering department. When he returned, the smile was almost a sneer.

"Well?" said the underclerk, with a laugh.

"Same old thing," he said wearily. "The receipt was given for goods bought by her Thursday. She has lost or mislaid her receipt for the $5 and, judging us by herself, was afraid we would deny receiving it, so hatched up that lie. By heavens, I believe a woman would lie her soul away to save a dollar!"

The other man chuckled.

"You think it is funny. Well, I don't."

An hour later he turned to his clerk again:

"Five more women; five more lies; a good record for an hour."

A woman stood beside him, and as his eyes scanned her quickly he smiled involuntarily.

She was not shabbily genteel, but shabbily grotesque. The skimpy cape, the threadbare waist, the beflowered bonnet and ill hanging skirt were of all colors and materials. They were alike only in cleanliness.

She raised her sharp brown eyes, hesitated and smiled a little tremulously, showing gums entirely devoid of teeth. Then straightening herself up she said slowly:

"I've come to see if you'd take a rug back."

"What is the matter with the rug?"

"Nothin', only I don't want it."

"How long have you had it? A couple of days, I suppose," ironically.

"No, I've had it purty near two month."

"But you have not used it, of course."

"Well, it's been on the floor all the time, but I only set there when I have company, an' I don't have company very often," this a little apologetically. "It's a purty rug an' I like it, but I want to send it back."

"Why did you buy it, if you didn't want it?" he asked bluntly.

"I do want it, but—but I've got to have some money an' I can't get it unless I can send the rug back."

"How much was it?"

"'Leven dollars an' forty cents," she answered dejectedly.

"Are you sure there is nothing wrong with the rug?" he asked in an insinuating voice. "If it is crooked or off color or not as represented, I may be able to do something for you."

"No," emphatically, but sorrowfully, "there ain't nothin' wrong with the rug. It's purty an' all right, but I ain't hurt any, an'—I must have the money, an'—an' I thought you might take it back."

"Give me your name and address," he said, "and I will call tomorrow and look at it. I will tell you then what I can do." His eyes held a smile that was not amusement or contempt, but a combination of incredulity and joy that made the underclerk wonder.

The next afternoon he climbed five flights of stairs and was ushered into the room with the rug.

Its flaunting colors, the glaring chromos, the table with the installmen plan album, the few wooden chairs and the old cane rocker, even the one little scarlet geranium, were noted in a single glance. But he looked at the old woman's face long and steadily. It was such a battered old face, as though time, sorrow and privation had fought out their desperate battle there and left each time traces to tell the tale.

"It's a purty rug," was what she said.

"You don't want to give up the rug. Why do you do so?"

She clutched nervously at her apron and shrank within herself before the man who seemed to fill the room with his dominant, forceful personality. He was so strong, young, well groomed, that she felt suddenly old, weak and helpless before him.

"Excuse me," he said kindly. "I had no thoughts of prying into your business. I only want to help you out of this if I can."

"I know, I know," she said quickly, "an' you're good—good. You'll think me a silly old woman, but I can't bear to disappoint him. Nigh thirty years! It's a long time, an' we've both got old an' ugly, but our hearts is just the same. If he hadn't said it almost the last thing, I wouldn't care so much, but, 'Molly,' said he, 'be careful of your teeth. You've such a purty mouth. An'—an'—now I ain't no teeth at all, an' him a-comin' after all these years! It's a long time to be in prison, an' that's why I want the rug, 'cause it's so bright an' cheerful, an' he hain't seen nothin' very cheerful all these years, but—but I must have the teeth. I had the money for them, too, but they'll only send him to Cincinnati, where he went up from, so I'll have to send the money for the rest of the way. I must have the teeth," wringing her hands unconsciously while the sunken lips quivered and the tears trickled down the yellow cheeks. "I must have the teeth—an'—an' I don't know what to do.

"They sent him up for fifty years. It's a long time for killin' a man that egged him on to doin' it, an' he was young an' hot headed then. We'd only been married four year, an' we was jus' gettin' a nice little start, but," with a dry sob, "I know it seems silly to you fer an old woman to care how she looks, but it's for him; it's to please him."

The man walked quickly to the window.

A woman true for thirty years! A woman who would not lie! A woman whose love had grown with suffering! A woman with clear brown eyes like—He bowed his head in his hand a moment, and when he raised it the light of joy that shone through the mist was like the sun behind an April cloud.

"We can't take back the rug," he said, "but here," quickly writing on his card, "is the address of my dentist. Go to him. He will make your teeth, and I will stand good for them. Now promise me that you will go today."

"No, no," she said, breaking into tears. "I ain't nothin' to you an' I can't let you do that. God bless you! I ain't never taken nothin' yet but what I earned. I wouldn't feel honest in doin' this, for I wuzn't tryin' to get help, only to have the rug taken back."

"You must," he said firmly. "You can pay me back; you can pay it a little at a time. Will you be generous and do this to please me?" And he looked into her face with a winning smile.

"God is good," she answered brokenly, the weary old face lighting with a great joy. "I know you mean what you say, an' I'll pay you every cent jus' as soon as I can. You don't know what this means to me," breaking into helpless sobs, "for—for I want to look as good as I can for John."

That evening a girl with clear brown eyes sat with hands folded listlessly in her lap, her lips in wistful curve. Suddenly she started, a flush came to her cheeks, a warm light to her eyes. With a cry of joy she sprang to her feet and held out her hands to him. With no words he caught her to him and kissed her with a passion of love; then, putting his hand under her chin, he held her face so he could look into her eyes and said slowly:

"If I was sent to prison for thirty years, would you love me, be true to me and kiss me after those thirty years with the same gladness you do now?"

"I don't know," she answered hesitatingly.

"You don't know?"

"No. How could I? I love you so much I think I could love you always. But how can I tell? Oh," her face flushing scarlet, "what am I saying? I am telling you I love you, and—you have never yet said you loved me. And you cannot or you wouldn't have left me for a month with no word, even to tell me why."

"You know I love you, though," he said—"love you so much I was afraid of it. And I am happier to hear you say that you can't tell whether you would be true to me or not than for an assurance to come tripping off your tongue. It wasn't you, darling, but your sex, that has almost robbed me of my happiness. But one little old woman has redeemed all your sex for you and brought me to you again. For God's sake, never lie to me, Cleta!"

She looked at him with tender womanly pity.

"Poor boy!" she said softly. "You have seen the one side so long you forget how many sides there are to an octagon. Because from millions of women a few hundred come to you with lies on their lips must you condemn all womankind? No, no, my dear; you must not condemn women, for every noble man is mostly what his mother has made him. While women have their weaknesses, they are"—

"The light of man's life!" he cried.

Cricket as She Saw It.

A German schoolgirl thus describes the English game of cricket: "It is very good for the exercising of the limbs, besides they learn to obey orders and not to quarrel. The cricket court consists of a great lawn and a little tents, where the players repose themselves or where are the places of the audience, which has to pay a little money before they are permitted to regard the elevens. Now the baller sends a ball, the batter who is standing before the wicket has to send it abroad. If the ball knocks down the wickets, the baller and the backstop make their runs," etc.

But the gem of the article is the moral reflection made at the end of it by the juvenile essayist: "When they are thirsty, they go into the tents to drink a glass of brandy, then they are drunk, and their parents scolds; poor boys. I would not allow my children to play such a stupid game."

Strange Ideas of Feminine Beauty.

An African beauty must have small eyes, thick lips, a large, flat nose and a skin beautifully black. In New Guinea the nose is perforated and large piece of wood or bone inserted. On the northwest coast of America an incision more than two inches long is made in the lower lip and then filled with a wooden plug. In Guinea the lips are pierced with thorns, the head of the thorn being inside the mouth and the point resting on the chin.

Queen Elizabeth's Amulet.

Queen Elizabeth during her last illness wore around her neck a charm made of gold which had been bequeathed her by an old woman in Wales, who declared that so long as the queen wore it she would never be ill. The amulet, as was generally the case, proved of no avail, and Elizabeth, notwithstanding her faith in the charm, not only sickened, but died. During the plague in London people wore amulets to keep off the dread destroyer. Amulets of arsenic were worn near the heart. Quills of quicksilver were hung around the neck, and also the powder of toads.

The Absentminded Professor.

At a session of the German reichstag an absentminded member, Herr Wichmann, created no little amusement. He was calling the roll, and upon reaching his own name he paused for a response. Naturally none came. Then he called the name more loudly, waited a few seconds and roared it out at the top of his voice. The laughter of his colleagues finally aroused him to a sense of the ludicrousness of his act, and he joined in the general hilarity.

A Sudden Marriage.

"Let me tell you," says a Missouri correspondent of the Kansas City Journal, "about a marriage that happened in Saline county in 1856. The ceremony was performed by Elder McGarvey. The groom was a man named Johnson—I forget his first name—and, being mighty nervous about the approaching ceremony, he went to McGarvey and requested that he make it as short as possible and received the minister's assurance that he would do so. Mr. Johnson never forgot that night as he marched down with his bride on his arm and was met by the minister at the foot of the stairs. As soon as they reached the bottom step McGarvey stretched out his hands and said, 'You're married.' The suddenness of it took the groom's breath away, and he turned to his best man and shouted, 'Henry, am I married?' This marriage ceremony didn't take over ten seconds."

The Time Honored Spanker.

Once my sister Floy was sent on an errand for some things for my mother. There was a traveling man there who was selling carpet spankers, and he asked her:

"Has your mother got one of these spankers?"

"No, sir," she replied.

"What does she use?" he asked.

"Her hand," was the prompt reply.—Chicago Chronicle.

AUTHORS' BLUNDERS.

Some Mistakes In Which the Moon, Sun and Wind Figure.

The moon proves a terrible pitfall to most writers. Wilkie Collins once performed the marvelous feat of making it rise in the west. Rider Haggard, in "King Solomon's Mines," relies for the effective rendering of one of his most thrilling scenes upon an eclipse of the new moon.

Coleridge placed a star between the horns of the crescent moon, forgetting that to be visible in such a position the star would have to be between the earth and the moon or, say, 230,000 miles away only.

Next to the moon perhaps the sun is responsible for more glaring errors than any single concrete cause. At the beginning of a certain famous novel, the title of which a few years back was in everybody's mouth, an invalid character's room was said to have been lighted by one window looking directly toward the east. Yet at the end of the book, when the invalid dies, the author, wishing to make him depart this life in a flood of glory, suffuses this eastern windowed room with "the red glare of the setting sun."

Kingsley, too, made one of his heroes row out into the eastern ocean after the setting sun. But even this glaring absurdity has been capped. In a novel published by a well known firm there occurs the following passage, the scene being laid on board a big sailing ship: "'How's the wind?' asked the skipper. 'East-northeast,' replied the mate, glancing at the masthead pennant, which was streaming blithely in the direction indicated." So that in the world, according to novelists, we should not only find the sun setting in the east, but pennants would "stream" against the direction of the prevailing wind.

A TOPSY TURVY ROOM.

A Frenchman Who Plays Practical Jokes on His Guests.

A "topsy turvy room," writes a correspondent, not illusory, but actually so built, existed near Paris some years ago and may still exist. One who saw it thus describes it and the use to which it was put: "I was the guest of the owner of the house," he says, "from Saturday to Monday. He was a bachelor, very convivial in his tastes, and we were a very jolly party of men. When we woke up, about 2 o'clock on the Sunday morning, one of our number, sound asleep on the couch in the billiard room, was carried out like a log by a couple of servants. My host gave me a solemn wink and told me that if a sudden summons came I was to rush from my bedroom or else I might miss a sight worth seeing. I wanted nothing but sleep and was relieved when the summons came to find that it was broad daylight.

"Yawning, I followed the valet and found myself, with four others, silently peeping through little holes in the wall. The scene was absurd, ridiculous. A dazed man slowly waking to full consciousness was lying on a plastered floor, looking up in horror at a carpeted ceiling. Two heavy couches, an easy chair, chairs and tables securely fastened stared down at him from above. The man's eyes at last rested on a flowerpot directly over his head, from which a flaring rose, apparently real, was blooming. He gave a cry and, rolling over, grasped with frenzied hands the stem of the chandelier, which came up through the floor. The host burst into the room, with a loud laugh. 'They all do it,' he cried. 'They fear they will fall up to the ceiling.'"

"Sit" and "Set."

Some one who believes in teaching by example has concocted a lesson in the use of two little words which have been a source of mortification and trouble to many well meaning persons.

A man or woman either can set a hen, although they cannot sit her; neither can they set on her, although the hen might sit on them by the hour if they would allow it.

A man cannot set on the wash bench, but he could set the basin on it, and neither the basin nor the grammarians would object.

He could sit on the dog's tail if the dog were willing or he might set his foot on it. But if he should set on the aforesaid tail or sit his foot there the grammarians as well as the dog would howl, metaphorically at least.

And yet the man might set the tail aside and then sit down and be assailed neither by the dog nor by the grammarians.

His Maiden Speech.

It is related that when the Earl of Rochester in the reign of Charles II. rose to make his maiden speech in the house of lords he said: "My lords, my lords, I rise this time for the first time—the very first time. My lords, I divide my speech into four branches." Here there was an embarrassing pause of some seconds. "My lords," the earl then ejaculated, "if ever I rise again in this house you may cut me off, root and branches and all, forever."

KISSING THE HAND.

The Practice Was Instituted by the Early Roman Rulers.

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsar the custom was kept up, but only for a time.

These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

No such restriction, however, was placed on the emperors themselves, who, if they wished to confer signal honor on any of their subjects, kissed either the mouths or the eyes of those they wished specially to favor, the kiss generally intimating some promotion or personal satisfaction for some achievement.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his worldly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.

Not Ready to Arbitrate.

"Stop! Don't fight, boys! Can't we arbitrate this thing?" asked one of the bystanders.

"Yes, sir," panted the fellow who was on top. "Just as soon as I've blacked his other eye!"—Chicago Tribune.

—The profit of a gold mine depends, not on the amount of rock crushed under the stamps, but upon the amount of gold which can be extracted from the rock. In a similar way the value of the food which is eaten does not depend on the quantity which is taken into the stomach but upon the amount of nourishment extracted from it by the organs of nutrition and digestion. When these organs are disease they fail to extract the nourishment in sufficient quantities to supply the needs of the several organs of the body, and these organs cannot work without nourishment. The result is heart "trouble," liver "trouble," and many another ailment. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, acting on every organ of the digestive and nutritive system, restores it to health and vigor. It cures diseases remote from the stomach through the stomach in which they originated. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

IN LONDON SATURDAY!

Westminster Abbey the Centre of Interest in the World's Metropolis.

CORONATION OF KING EDWARD VII

Some of the Special Embassies Still in the City Much to Government's Embarrassment.

FORMATION OF THE PROCESSION

LONDON, Aug. 9.—With the coronation day London maintains its usual aspect. It is true that the short route of the procession is decorated at some points more brilliantly than before, but the route is a mere speck in the great area of the city and even on the streets to be traversed by the procession there are comparatively few sight-seers. The main thoroughfares, miles of which were gay with flags and bunting in June, are now stripped except for the illumination fixtures which were allowed to remain in place.

Westminster is the centre of what little activity London displays. The chief stands in the vicinity of St. Margaret's have been decorated and Piccadilly refurnished with crimson Venetian masts supporting trophies and flags, joined by streamers of gay bunting. The same general scheme prevails in Pall Mall. Many club-stands have disappeared. The private stands, re-covered in crimson, are doing a fair business, prices for seats running from $10 to $50, with the cheaper classes sold out. Westminster Abbey Friday received the precious regalia which was taken under a strong guard from the Tower and also a wealth of gold and silver plate from Buckingham palace, all of which were guarded last night by a strong detachment of life guards and yeoman guards.

The American Embassy received a formal letter from the war office asking it to loan an American flag to decorate a balcony at the war office. The flag was sent and today it flew from the balcony.

The first section of the procession to the Abbey will start from Buckingham palace at 10:30 o'clock and will consist of dress carriages and pairs, containing members of the royal family, headed by trumpeters, the Royal Horse Guards' band, the First Life Guards and the Royal Horse Guards.

After the foregoing will come the Prince of Wales procession, which will start from York House at 10.45.

The advance guard will consist of a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards followed by two carriages containing official members of the Prince and Princess of Wales household, the First troop of the Royal Horse Guards, the carriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Second troop of the Royal Horse Guards.

The King's procession will leave Buckingham palace at 11 o'clock, escorted by the Royal Horse Guards, the King's bargemaster and 12 watermen. The carriages will then follow.

The carriages are followed by the personal staff to the commander-in-chief, Lord Roberts, mounted, aids-de-camp to the King, consisting of ten colonels of volunteer regiments, seven colonels of yeomanry and nine colonels of military regiments. Nearly all of the above aides are members of the peerage.

Then comes the state coach conveying their majesties, attended by the Duke of Connaught and Prince Arthur, of Connaught, followed by the royal standard and an escort.

After these comes the Duke of Buccleuch, captain general of the Royal Company of Archers; Earl Waldegrave, captain of the Yeomen of the Guard, and the Duke of Portland, master of the horse, followed by the equerries-in-waiting and the royal grooms.

The rear division consists of an escort of the Royal Horse Guards and the reserve squadron of the Second Life Guards.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Thoughtlessness of Passengers.

Considerable complaint has been coming to the Pennsylvania railroad in regard to passengers stumbling and falling over dress suit cases, which are placed in the aisles of passenger coaches by other passengers. The attention of trainmen has been called to this nuisance by a special order, stating that when suit cases cannot be put between the seats or in them they should be placed in the baggage car. The thoughtlessness of passengers often causes officials great annoyance.

DR. WOLF RE-UNION,

Centre County's Greatest Teacher Honored by a Large and Enthusiastic Assemblage.

The esteem in which the people of Centre county hold the grand and noble life, as lived by the much loved and respected Rev. Dr. D. M. Wolf was made manifest Thursday by the twelve hundred or more friends who gathered at Spring Mills to humbly honor the man who has done more for the educational life of our county than any other person. The day was perfect and even the weather man in his busy occupation of sending us so much rain lately felt it his desire to pay some honor too, and did it by lending pleasure in giving fine weather.

The people began to arrive early at Allison's grove where the re-union was held. As they arrived each one eagerly sought Dr. Wolf and kindly and feeling ly grasped his hand in hearty congratulations.

At ten o'clock the program as prepared by the committee was commenced, Rev. Frank Wetzel of Rebersburg, offered prayer after which J. C. Meyer, Esq., made some introductory remarks and as chairman of the committee extended a welcome to all. Prof. A. E. Gobble was the presiding officer and when he introduced Dr. Wolf as the next speaker, such applause was given as was never before heard along the banks of Penns Creek. The subject of the Doctor's talk was "My Boys and Girls" and he spoke in a most interesting and feeling manner. Nearly overcome by the hearty manner in which he was greeted, he told of his life work, and during it he spoke of the pleasure he had in coming into contact with young minds and his duty in moulding them as his own self and his God directed he should. Nearly three thousand pupils have directly received instruction from Dr. Wolf, and when we consider that a great many of these became teachers and in turn taught others we begin to realize how many of the youth of our community in the past fifty years have been benefitted by Dr. Wolf. While the Doctor spoke many an eye was bedimmed by a tear of love and thankfulness for him who is loved by everyone who ever came into association.

Rev. Lewis Robb, of Altoona, spoke in his usual pleasing manner and pointed out the importance of the Academy in the community. The Academy the Public School and the College was ably discussed in an interesting paper by Dr. H. C. Holloway who years ago received his early training from Dr. Wolf.

These addresses concluded the programme for the morning, and as the reunion took on the nature of a basket picnic, the noon hour was spent in eating the well prepared lunches and is social intercourse.

The program in the afternoon was opened by Rev. J. S. Stahr, Ph. D., D. D. President of Franklin and Marshall college, of Lancaster. Dr. Stahr was a fellow professor at Franklin and Marshall college years ago, and came back to officially extend the congratulations of the college faculty on this joyful occasion. Dr. Stahr spoke of one mans influence and said that never in his career had he seen so much influence for good exerted as that by Dr. Wolf.

Prof. T. M. Balliet, now superintendent of the Springfield, Mass., schools and formerly principal of the Bellefonte High School, being unable to be present sent a letter which was read by Prof. W. F. Hosterman, Col. D. F. Fortney was unexpected by called upon and responded in a neat talk full of good thoughts.

The reminiscent speeches were interesting and the little anecdotes related brought out some interesting happenings which Dr. Wolf seemed to recall and enjoy. Those who spoke in a reminiscent way were: Rev. L. K. Evans, of Pottstown, who has been intimately associated with Dr. Wolf since boyhood, Rev. J. B. Kershuer, of Freeland; J. Frank Meyer and Rev. J. M. Runkle.

The music which was most excellent and very materially added to the pleasure of the reunion was furnished by the Penn Hall band and a choir of about thirty well trained voices under the direction of J. S. Meyer of Penn Hall.

A permanent organization of the pupils of the Penn Hall, Spring Mills Academy was effected and a registration made of all those who attended the school. The idea is to have re-unions from time to time and to keep alive the old associations.

Sold a Deer After Killing It.

Jesse Francis, of near Haneyville, has been arrested by State Game Warden Berrier, on the charge of selling a deer. Francis, the information reads, killed the deer last fall on the last day of the season. He sold it a few days later for ten dollars to a resident of Brown township, Lycoming county. Francis furnished $200 bail before a Williamspert alderman for his appearance at court.

A Boy's Feet Cut Off.

Postmaster U. S. Boyer, of Clarkstown, Lycoming county, Thursday left his 8 year old son Chester on the mower in the hay field, while he went to an adjoining field. When he returned he found his boy screaming, with both feet severed at the ankles, they having been cut off by the knives of the mower. The legs were amputated near the knee, but the child's condition is very critical.

VERDICT RENDERED

End of Investigation by Coroner's Jury Into the Death of Joseph Beddall.

NUMBER OF ARRESTS FOLLOW

Rev. Charles E. Edwards, of Shenandoah, Tells of the Foreigners and their Characteristics.

TROOPS PASSED A VERY QUIET DAY

SHENANDOAH, August 8.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the death of Joseph Beddall, who received his fatal injuries in the riot here last week, concluded its inquiry Thursday and rendered a verdict holding "Joseph Paluicz, a butcher; Matthew Paulackas, a one-armed saloon keeper and many other rioters, unknown to the jury" responsible for the killing. The men named in the verdict are now locked up and other arrests will follow. The two men were taken into custody Thursday by two constables who were protected by a platoon of soldiers from company K, of the Twelfth regiment.

A large number of witnesses were examined including the three workmen and Deputy Sheriff Thomas Beddall, who were first attacked by the mob, the six policeman who were subsequently set upon and some of them shot and several eye-witnesses of the riot.

Some of the testimony was considered very important by the coroner and the jury. Paluwicz was identified by three boys, who testified they saw him in the crowd with a club, and Paulackas is alleged by another witness to have injured Joseph Beddall.

The policeman testified that as they ran up the street pursued by the mob firing pistols, men standing at nearly every saloon door shot at them as they passed. At one doorway three men stood blazing away at them and from an upper window of a building three other men were shooting down on them. The drinking places referred to are all owned by foreigners.

Policeman Ringbeiser testified that when he heard of the disturbance he immediately started to summon his fellow officers. While doing so he met Pierce Walker, a mine worker. He asked Walker to call the miners' committee and have it use its influence to disperse the crowd, but Ringbeiser said: "He only gave me the laugh."

During the inquest a number of names of persons who it is alleged were in the riot, and the location of others whose names are withheld, were furnished the coroner. These names will be given to the proper authorities and arrests made. One other foreigner, Joseph Wenckkonis, who was shot in the face, was arrested Thureday on a charge of rioting. Nearly a dozen men are now in custody, charged with complicity in the affair.

The situation in this section of the coal field remains unchanged and staff officers at brigade headquarters do not apprehend any trouble in the near future. The troops had a quiet day. Two companies are still on guard duty in the foreign quarter of the town. The Governor's troop of cavalry took a practice march of twenty miles through the Mahanoy valley, passing through Maiserville, Frackville, Morea, New Boston, Mahanoy City, St. Nicholas, Lanigenville Pass and Jackson's Patch. The Eighth regiment and the two companies of the Fourth regiment gave an evening parade and review at brigade headquarters at 5 o'clock.

Both the English and foreign-speaking local unions of the miners held mass meetings Thursday, at which district leaders made addresses. The question of relief was one of the principal subject discussed.

A meeting of Protestant ministers of this section, who are interested in the spiritual welfare of the foreign population, was held here Thursday night, and after the regular business had been disposed of, the Rev. Charles E. Edwards, of that place, who has made a scientific study of the characteristics of the foreign-speaking people in the coal region, delivered an address which is of interest at this time.

He said that within a radius of six miles of Shenandoah there are approximately 30,000 foreigners who came from the northern part of Austria-Hungary. Of these 17,000 are Lithuanians, 8,000 are Poles, 3,000 are Ruthenians, 1,000 Slovaks and 400 Bohemians. The Lithuanians are considered the most intelligent among them. They do not care to be classed with the others and claim that theirs is the most ancient of European languages. Mr. Edwards said the Lithuanians soon become Americanized in this country and make good citizens, but before they learn to understand American ways and institutions they are hard to control. Their intelligence makes them capable leaders.

An Interesting Letter From Hon. D. H. Hasting.

Mr. Isaac Mitchell in receipt of a letter from Hon. D. H. Hastings written at Karlsbad, giving an account of how the visitors at that celebrated resort pass their time and other items which will be read with interest by his many friends. We are allowed to publish it through the courtesy of Mr. Mitchell.

"One day here is just like all the others. I will tell you about it. We rise at six o'clock sharp, take cold sponge bath, drink two glasses of cold sprindel water while dressing; walk half mile to the Sprindel Spring which is a natural hot water geiser, covered by a shed after the pattern of Broad Street Station. There a band of music plays from six a. m. to eight a. m., your glass of hot water is handed you by a Dutch peasant girl, and you join a procession of ten thousand people marching around (to the right) sipping the water from time to time, two glasses occupy half an hour; then we go to the Austrian Bank at eight a. m., for our letters, Bank opens at 7 a. m. with thousands of others, we go to a meat stall and purchase cold ham for breakfast; we again join the procession and walk up the "Alt Weiss" (old street) to one of the dozen or more out-door Restaurants, a distance of one to three miles, here we sit down at a table, eat our ham and a boiled egg and drink a glass of hot milk, then we stroll back to our hotel, read the London papers and take lunch (cold chicken) at one p. m. From two to four we walk through beautiful paths in the Forest. At five we take a steam bath which last till six fifteen, at seven we have beef steak and zchwiebach for supper, topped of with stewed fruit, then to our room.

Half the hotels here are owned by a man named "Pupp" who seems to be something of a George C. Boldt, in hotel management. Charges are reasonable. Lights are out and the town is dark and silent at eight thirty p. m. Bands begin to play all over the town, at six a. m., each visitor pays a tax of forty Florins ($10.00) for use of the water, this money is applied by the Austrian Government in support of schools and music. There are seventeen different Springs here, the analysis of all is the same, the difference being in temperature, the Sprindel is the hottest. All nations of the earth, and all tribes, are represented here, the talk you hear, as the crowd surges along, suggests the tower of Babel. There are Americans from almost every state in the union, the heir to the Austrian Throne is here and attracts much attention. The Schah of Persia is here with a staff of forty-five soldiers, eight representatives of his harem, and four French girls from Paris. He looks like anything but a potentate fit to be ruling seven millions of people, there is a larger representation of preachers and priests than any other profession.

If the Americans and Hebrews moved out three fourths of the population would be gone. The waters are marvellously health restoring and health producing, there is no doubt about this."

The American Lime and Stone Co. are Trespassing on Borough Property

We have been informed, and reliably informed, that the American Lime and Stone Company, have taken it into their hands, without any authority, whatever, to change the street at McCalmont and Co.'s lime kilns belonging to the borough, to an entirely new location. If they are allowed to proceed, instead of being an improvement, it will make it much more dangerous for travel, and very inconvenient to those whose business calls them in that direction.

The fact of this change being made, has been known for some time to the Street Committee, but notwithstanding this knowledge, have not considered it necessary to report the matter to Council. This Committee should remember that the streets are public property, and to change or alter them in any manner must have the consent of that entire body.

The American Lime and Stone Company, have recently come into possession of that property, and are going to arrange the street to suit themselves, without regard to lines, boundries or law, and unless they are given to understand at once that the people have some privileges, there is no telling how soon the right of way will be closed to every one.

Seriously Injured.

Wednesday afternoon while Valentine Scheid was unloading hay in the barn of the Fredericks' estate, Bald Eagle township, Clinton county, the hoisting fork slipped down and one of the broad tines penetrated Mr. Scheid's stomach. A large and ragged wound was inflicted. The wound is somewhat like that of President McKinley, with the exception that the president's was made by a bullet. The unusual nature of the wound made it an interesting one for the physicians, nearly all of whom made an examination of it after the injured man had been taken to the hospital. The wound was given the necessary attention.

Later—Mr. Scheid passed peacefully away Friday morning.

Grange Picnic.

Saturday, July 26, was in the true sense of the word a galla day for Half Moon Grange.

In pursuance to announcement the members of the Grange and neighbors and friends from the surrounding community assembled in the beautiful grounds that surround the Hall at the Friends church in Half Moon township for a day of pleasure and enjoyment.

The committee arranged an interesting program which was rendered, as follows:

Prayer, Rev. Eslinger; instrumental music, H. M. Miles, Port Matilda, singing by Mary and Lucy Eslinger, Stormstown; recitation, Helen Ebbs, Loveville.

Harry Way, of State College, then made an instructive talk on the advantage of a college education to the farmer.

Miss Eva Ebbs, of Loveville, favored us with instrumental music.

Recitation—Daniel Fisher, Loveville.

"What Constitutes a Good Education" was responded to in a most happy and appreciative talk by Miss Esther Gray, of Buffalo Run.

Song—Miss Edith Zimmerman, Port Matilda.

Hon. Leonard Rhone, of Centre Hall, was the next speaker. He spoke on the unjust discrimination against the farmer as compared to other classes in two particulars: Taxation and Representation. Mr. Rhone produced statistics showing that capital invested in other business paid four mills as against sixteen mills for capital invested in farms, and said if farmers were treated fairly they, too, could spend a portion of the heated season at Summer resorts as well as their brother capitalist, merchant, etc. Again, the farmer represents 45 per cent. of the voting population and has only a few members in Congress to champion the great interests of the Agricultural class.

Mr. Rhone showed by his speech that he had not lost any of the vim and enthusiasm which characterized him in his younger manhood.

Recitation—Miss Georgeanna Gage, Loveville.

A vocal duet was then rendered by C. O. Whippo and daughter Minnie to the gratification of all.

Aquilla Williams, of Port Matilda, read an excellent paper on "Practical Education."

Rev. Eslinger, of Stormstown, though the last speaker on the program, proved not to be the least. He indulged in a few pleasantries which brought forth laughter and prepared the crowd for the enjoyment of the day.

Two games of base ball were played between Half Moon and Gatesburg and Port Matilda and Loveville nines, the victors being Half Moon and Port Matilda.

The day was fine and the picnic a grand success. We are all indebted to the committee, Mrs. Nannie Gray, Mrs. Mary A. Way and Mrs. Emeline Beck, who left nothing undone for our enjoyment.

Rural Mail Delivery in Centre County Half a Century Ago.

"There is no new thing under the sun" is an old and true saying which is illustrated forcibly many times and in various ways. It applies very appropriately to the subject upon which we wish to write.

The question of Rural Free Mail Delivery, is receiving a great amount of attention by the Post Office Department at Washington, and is, considered a wonderous improvement, over existing methods, and something entirely new—in fact an inspiration of the present decade.

Our readers will doubtless be surprised to learn, that free rural delivery was instituted; and successfully carried on in Centre County, over fifty years ago. Mr. James Harris is authority for our statement, for as far back as 1851 he says, it was conducted in a most satisfactory manner in Snow Shoe Township, having been inaugurated by Mr. Samuel Askey, post master at that time, and for many years previous.

The Mail, in those days, was carried on horseback once a week from Bellefonte to Brookville, and when it reached his office, he would put the letters in his high hat, and in traveling through the country, deliver them anywhere between the two Moshannons, and as far out as the West Branch, thereby affording those who lived remote from the office, the opportunity of getting their letters promptly and without extra expense.

The plan was highly satisfactory, and Mr. Askey continued it as long as he remained in commission. His successor, however, was either not so public spirited or probably did not wear a high hat, at all events the service was discontinued. We can, therefore, safely claim for Centre County, the credit of establishing and carrying on this system over half a century ago; long before many of the post office officials were born.

Mr. Askey was one of the first pioneer settlers of Snow Shoe Township, and died many years ago. A man of intelligence and integrity, he was a moulder of public sentiment in that entire region, and was honored and respected for his good qualities. He was a veteran of the war of the Revolution, a loyal man and devoted to his country and its interests. His family, of six sons and two daughters, were men and women who inherited the sterling traits of their father, they settled in various part of the country and many of their descendants reside within the confines of our county.

EDITORIAL.

THE BELLEFONTE "REPUBLICAN" FOR 25 CENTS.

In order to place the REPUBLICAN, during the coming campaign, in as many homes as possible, we have decided to make the following liberal offer, On receipt of 25 cents, we will mail the REPUBLICAN (weekly) to new subscribers, until after the election in November. As the campaign promises to be decidedly exciting and interesting, persons wishing to keep themselves informed on the political situation, should avail themselves of this generous offer. The REPUBLICAN intends taking a leading and decided stand during the campaign, and we promise interesting reading to its subcribers.

A WORD TO OUR CANDIDATES.

The Democratic candidates for the several offices to be chosen at the coming election are laboring hard to secure pledges from Republicans, whose votes they will need in order to be successful.

We call upon those who were nominated at the last Republican Convention to commence their campaign NOW, and not wait until a short time before the election, but get the voters in line as soon as possible, for all that is necessary to elect every man on the ticket is to create an enthusiasm in our party which will insure a full vote and that is all we need to bring success.

The REPUBLICAN will use its columns and exert its influence for the party, but it is individual effort which counts, and no one of the candidates need expect to sit quietly at home in the hope of being carried through successfully. The voters will cheerfully help those who show a disposition to help themselves, but no laggard need expect to win in the race.

This is our year, and we assure victory if the proper amount of energy is put forth by those who are to reap the benefit.

The Democratic candidates see the necessity of hard and constant work, and every one of them are "up and doing," laboring like Trojans to secure promises of support from their friends in our ranks.

We have a good, strong ticket, every man upon it being a man of character and reputation, and eminently qualified to discharge intelligently and faithfully the duties required of the position to which they aspire.

We are in a position to make an aggressive campaign as there is so much discord, and apathy in their party-and each individual candidate on that side stands ready to trade and knife the other in their desperate attempt to win.

Never in our history have the prospects been brighter and if defeat comes to any one they can lay the blame on themselves.

JUDGE PENNYPACKER.

This distinguished jurist now the Republican candidate for governor ranked among the highest of the Common Pleas Judges. His rediddence is in Philadelphia, but during the genial springtime, summer's heat and the balmy days of fall he enjoys life on his farm at the Pennypack Mills, in Montgomery county, while for 200 years the name of Pennypacker has always been mentioned with pride in Chester and adjoining counties. Judge Pennypacker may be said to hail from three great counties of the Commonwealth. A Quaker, he is a Past Commander of a Grand Army Post, and in this particular qualification we make a quotation from a high authority:

"A single Pennsylvania family sent into the war two generals, an adjutant general, four colonels, a lieutenant-colonel, two surgeons, two assistant surgeons, an adjutant, nine captains, seven lieutenants and one hundred and sixteen sergeants corporals and privates including the most youthful of American generals in all one hundred and forty-five men, and so far as has been ascertained an unequalled contribution to the great struggle."

And the name of that Pennsylvania family was Pennypacker. The Judge, who was himself a soldier has the warm support of nearly every boy who wore the blue, and he also has the support of hundreds of thousands of citizens who see in him the elements sure to make a good governor.

CHARLES EMORY SMITH, former Postmaster General, and James M. Beck, former Democratic United States District Attorney and now Assistant United States Attorney General, are expected to take the stump for Judge Pennypacker and the States ticket this fall. They will be among the speakers at a meeting to be held in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, early in September and then will tour the State with Judge Pennypacker. The other speakers will include Hamilton L. Carson, who made the speech placing the name of Judge Pennypacker before the State Convention and City Treasurer J. Hampton Moore. Judge Pennypacker also will make an adventure at the Academy meeting in which he will outline the issue on which the contest will be fought in November. The Academy meeting will open the campaign.

EVERY man, whether employer or employee, working by the day or the hour, working for others or for himself, every man who belives that the conditions now prevailing are better conditions than those that prevailed in 1896, should see to it that his vote and his influence are cast against the election of a Democratic Congress next November. Pennsylvania should return a Republican Senator and its full quota of Republican members of the House.

THE nomination of Pennypacker is in itself a refutation of the statement that it is ridiculous to expect reform within the party. Democrats know that Judge Pennypacker's nomination was in response to a demand of Republicans, some of them of the independent stripe, others of the stalwart kind. Democrats also know that nearly every charge made against Republicans involves members of their own party, even one of their candidates.

PLANS FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—Contrary to expectation, State Chairman Senator Quay did not take charge of headquarters here in Philadelphia yesterday. He is sitting in a second-story front room of an Atlantic City cottage, with his right foot swathed in bandages and resting on a chair. It will be at least a week or ten days before he will be able to abandon this position.

The senator is suffering from a painful but not serious burn. The whole top of the right foot is blistered and a hole burned into the flesh. He was about to take a foot bath in a smooth porcelain tub with four faucets. In the semi-darkness of the room he turned on the hot water and could not get out of the way of the boiling torrent quick enough.

It was announced several weeks ago that Senator Quay would take charge of Republican state headquarters about September 1. He started for the Maine woods to recuperate and fish, but found the streams swollen and the land marshy. Then he tried to compromise on the Adirondacks, but the raw air threatened a return of his old cough, and he came down to Atlantic and rented a cottage. From here he will take up his residence in Philadelphia till Pennypacker is elected.

An interesting piece of gossip has been floating around Washington the last few days. It is that President Roosevelt is strongly disposed to urge Senator Quay for national chairman. There is a very logical basis for this story, too.

QUAY FOR NATIONAL CHAIRMAN

If President Roosevelt is nominated, and he is certain to be according to the belief of Senator Quay, Senator Hanna will not care to serve as national chairman, although his personal relations with the president are perfectly harmonious and pleasant. Besides, Senator Hanna's health is not good.

The New England contingent want to make Governor William Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, Hanna's successor. The western people are clamoring for Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, a young man like the president himself. The older heads in the party are looking for a man of ideas and experience combined, and they have selected Quay.

Of course it is a long way ahead yet, and a great deal of the talk about a national chairman is largely speculative, but that Senator Quay is being urged for the place by men like Platt and Kean, of New Jersey, contingent always on the dropping out of Hanna, is a fact. Quay's combination with Platt put Roosevelt on the ticket with McKinley. His magnificent management of the first Harrison campaign made him nationally famous, and it is perfectly logical now that he should be urged for national chairman two years hence.

PATTISON ORGANS IN A HOLE.

"The hardest blow that the Democrats have sustained," said a Pittsburg visitor to state headquarters yesterday, "was the action of the Citizens party leaders in Pittsburg in placing the name of Pennypacker and the other state candidates on their ticket. The Democrats in Allegheny county expected to have Pattison endorsed by the Citizens party. This would have been a big card for Pattison all over the state, but the Citizens party leaders, all of whom are Republicans, decided to fall in with all the other Republicans of the state and stand by the colors."

The Democratic newspapers of the state are following out a plan of battle by which they hope to direct attention away from their own demoralized condition. It consists in claiming that the Republican party is still rent by dissentions and that a cut-throat policy is to be pursued by the dissatisfied. This is all bosh! It is a wail of despair!

INDEPENDENTS ALL BACK HOME.

The interview with Ex-Postmaster General Charles Emery Smith published last week in these dispatches settled such rumors. He was one of the most conspicuous Independents in the state. Others like Ex-Governor Hastings, Senator Alex. Stewart, of Franklin; Senator Drury, of Luzerne; Senator Robert W. Edmiston, of Bradford; Senator Hampton W. Rice, of Bucks are all supporting Pennypacker. And yet they were in the fore-front of Independent battles for years along with Representative Robert K. Young, of Tioga; James Clarency and Elias Abrams, of Philadelphia; all the Allegheny county delegates, the Bradford county delegation and representatives from a score of other counties who are now firmly fastened by loyalty within party lines.

As for the Independent newspapers in the state there is not one that is not supporting the whole Republican ticket. This includes such conspicuous daily journals as the Philadelphia "Press," the Wilkesbarre "Record," the York "Dispatch" and a hundred and more interior daily and weekly journals whose influence has always been felt on which ever side they took their stand.

All talk of Republican dissatisfaction is too puerile to merit consideration. Scars are inevitable in politics. There was never a time when some one did not carry them. There are fewer this year than for eight years past. The leaders who differed with the organization in the last state convention are now foremost in fighting the common enemy.

PLANS FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

Secretary of the State Committee Col. W. R. Andrews is busy on the work of preparing for the campaign tour of Judge Pennypacker and his company of spell-binders. The calls for all over the state for a visit from this distinguished party are growing so numerous that it is going to be quite a job to satisfy everybody. But Col. Andrews is possessed of such ability as a manager that all parties are pretty sure to be satisfied. The attempt will be made to reach every county in the state.

The first great gun of the campaign will be fired at the Academy of Music on or about Sept. 10. Judge Pennypacker will be the star. The make-up of the campaigning party has not yet been completed. The speakers will work in relays or shifts. Some will remain with Judge Pennypacker to the end; others will go out on the road for two or three weeks only.

Among those who will make up the list are Major I. B. Brown, candidate for secretary of internal affairs; ex-Senator W. M. Brown, candidate for lieutenant governor; Senator Penrose, Ex-Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith, Governor W. A. Stone, Congressmen M. E. Olmstead, Thad. Mahan, Irving P. Wanger, John Dalzell, H. H. Bingham, Assistant Attorney General of the U. S. James M. Beck, Attorney General John P. Elkins, Ex-District Attorney George S. Graham of Philadelphia; Hampton M. Carson, Esq., and Jno. P. Kinsey, Esq., city solicitor of Philadelphia; J. Hampton Moore, city treasurer of Philadelphia; Ex-Governor Daniel H. Hastings, Albert Miller, district attorney of Harrisburg, and possibly a number of speakers, members of congress who are now giving the invitation consideration.

Never before in the history of the state committee's work has there been so much interest displayed by county leaders in any campaign as the present. Secretary Andrews thus early in the canvass is fairly swamped with work, often remaining at his desk till midnight and double the number of stenographers usually employed at this time are now at work.

PENROSE SAYS IT MEANS VICTORY

Senator Penrose who has been in charge of state headquarters since the first of the month has been compelled to abandon even a semi-weekly visit to the seashore over night, so great have been the number of visitors and demands from correspondents.

"It shows how greatly the people are interested in this year's campaign," said Senator Penrose. "Republican prosperity is not a theory, but an established, self-evident fact, and everybody wants it to continue. It can only be continued by Republican activity, and Republican activity in Pennsylvania this year is going to result in one of the greatest victories the state has ever known."

The calls for literature of all kinds are very numerous. These will be answered, Secretary Andrews says, in a perfectly satisfactory manner. The committee is having a hand-book prepared which will be placed in the possession of every worker, and which will be one of the most comprehensive works of its kind ever published.

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

The activity of the management of the Philadelphia Orchestra continues to excite comment in the musical circles.

In addition to having completed the list of dates upon which the organization will appear in Philadelphia during their regular season; commencing October 31st, they are engaged in the work of planning the second series of concerts in the cities throughout Pennsylvania.

These series were inaugurated last season. The interest in the appearances of the Orchestra among the musical devotees of various cities and towns in the interior of the state, was so strong that the management feels justified in planning another cycle of concerts upon an even more ambitious scale than those of the first year.

Notable soloists will be engaged, and the people outside of Philadelphia will hear the representative musical body of Pennsylvania at its very best.

The list of dates for the state tour is nearly completed and will shortly be announced. The places to be visited will include York, Harrisburg, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Williamsport, Lancaster, Wilmington, Allentown, Reading, Trenton, Lock Haven, Carlisle and Lebanon.

There is considerable interest manifested among those interested in the Orchestra, regarding the engagement of a concert meister. The matter is now under discussion and the choice will be announced shortly. It can be confidently stated that the engagement will give general satisfaction.

Many of the members of the Philadelphia Orchestra have taken advantage of the heated term to make short trips to their homes abroad. It is probable that Fritz Scheel may make a hurried trip to some of the famous musical centers of the old world in order that he may have the advantage of making personal selections of some of the choicest of new orchestra music. It is his intention to number many novelties among his programs during the coming season.

A LASTING EFFECT.

This evidence should prove every claim in Bellefonte.

Relief from the pains and aches of a bad back is always welcome to every backache sufferer in Bellefonte, but to cure a lame, weak or aching back is what is wanted. Cure it so it will stay cured. It can be done. Here's the strongest evidence to prove it.

Mr. James Rine. West High Street, employed in the planing mill says: "I can speak as highly now of Doan's Kidney Pills as I did years ago and my case is pretty good evidence that the cures made by them are not temporary. I have not had any of the severe pains in my back since I used Doan's Kidney Pills while before I could not put on my shoes and could hardly drag myself around. Though I have had slight touches of backach it never amounted to much. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to hundreds of people and I know of those who have had the greatest relief from suffering by using them I can say they are reliable and permanent in their effects.

—For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it:

THE Republican party builds; it never destroys that which is good. It has built up American industries; built up American markets for goods; built up a great navy; and its latest authorized achievement as a canal of world wide use.

—The Evangelical Sunday School united for the day with the Pleasant View Sunday School in a picnic Wednesday at Hecla Park.

THE FANCY DRESS BALL.

A Great Success Financially and Socially.

The great social event of the season took place at the Armory Thursday night and exceeded in every way the expectations of those having it in charge. The audience was large, much larger than had been expected, though the building was not uncomfortably crowded. The committee had labored long and patiently to prepare for it and were rewarded for their pains by the marked appreciation of their efforts, and it is flattering to the Hospital managers to know that this institution is in such popular favor.

Much might be written of those who composed the audience and of the various handsome gowns worn by the ladies, but space will not permit dwelling on this subject; we will simply say everyone looked their best, and when they do that our ladies can outshine anything under the sun.

Although nine o'clock was the hour appointed for the grand march many persons were there an hour previous to that time, for this part of the entertainment was the great attraction and everyone wanted to witness it.

Promptly at nine o'clock the orchestra started the music, and from the stage came marching a motley crew. Edmund Blanchard, dressed as a Dutch Boroughmaster, was master of ceremonies and headed the procession. George Bush as a Pilgrim Father, and Miss Rebecca Blanchard as a haymaker, led the march, and they did it in such a manner that not a mistake occurred.

It was a beautiful sight to witness the lines weaving through each other like an imaginary snake, but with an exactness that brought every partner together at the right time in perfect order. There were all manner of characters in the procession, some strikingly beautiful, others simply ridiculous, but when combined producing a conglomerate harmony. The marching and figures were new and novel, but Mr. Blanchard directed the movements like a Past Master in the art.

We would like to give a detailed mention of those taking part and the different characters assumed, but find it impossible to do so owing to there being such a large number, at least eighty persons being in the grand march.

Of course there were some particularly striking, and we know we will be pardoned for naming them. For instance, Miss Bess Meek as Topsy was the acknowledged "hit" of the evening. No one will contradict this. Mrs. Mollie Valentine in the role of a Roman lady deserves special mention, and Robert Morris as Uncle Sam could not have been excelled. Maurice Jackson and Laird Curtin took the part of fashionable ladies to perfection, and should hereafter be known as Mary and Lucy. John Bullock as a nobleman in the time of Charles II had probably the finest costume worn by the men. Mrs. Pierpoint represented an old-time belle up to nature. Miss Dillen, a visitor, was a beautiful flower girl. Harry Keller as a Turk was all right and attracted a great deal of attention. John Curtin had a "deuced" queer arrangement on, you couldn't tell which was befront or which was behint. Henry Linn made a first rate devil and Mr. Owen as Mephistopheles made us feel a little queer. Mrs. L. E. Reber, of State College, looked every inch a Quaker in her modest garb. Mrs. Sade Larimer with her smoke pipe made us think of our old Irish grandmother. Thos. Fleming as "Wellington" looked as though he was a soldier-born, and then the Irish (we almost imagined ourselves at "Donnybrook Fair) John Blanchard, Tom Beaver, Wallace Gephart and Mr. Wilhelm were certainly not French. Don Potter, Sam Hart, Coburn Rogers, Harold Lingle, Howard Curtin, Frank Curtin and Rand Hoy represented a variety of characters, but it is past us to tell what they were. Mr. Ray as a sailor looked as if he had been taking a cruise on one of Uncle Sam's armored war ships.

Jennie Breese, Christine Blanchard, Rebecca Blanchard, Miss Howe and Grace Cook were beautiful English flower girls. Germany was well represented by Elizabeth Blanchard, Nan Hoy, Louise Valentine, Grace Mitchell, Marguerite Potter, Miss Darrow, Miss Foster, Mary Blanchard, Mary Hoy, Anna Valentine and Clara Nicolls, who appeared as peasants. Ann Orvis, Mary Thomas and Eleanor Harris took the part of Moorish maidens. Margaret Thomas, Sara Potter, Thomazine Potter, Lillian Muffly and Mary Weaver wore Norwegian peasant costumes. Mary Meek was a young Irish girl. Lewis Daggett and Malcolm Mitchell were in evidence in appropriate characters. Chas. Mensch as a good little boy and Bessie Musser as a pretty little girl took us back to our childhood days. Mac. Laurie showed how a Canadian skater looks. Geo. Valentine made a good Napoleon and Robert Valentine a fierce looking pirate. John Munson was good but not very pretty—red hair is not becoming to him. Dick Lane was the only Dutchman who had time to be there. Geo. R. Meek as "Sambo" was good. John Little and Marie White as farmer and wife were capital.

J. Norris Bogle was present as a Moor which caste was well taken, Charles Miller represented a Zouave. Mr. and Mrs. Trout of Tyrone were also in Fancy Dress. Mr. Trout as a military officer and we fail to remember the character taken by Mrs. Trout. We have failed to remember some who participated as we stated before, if any feel slighted will say it is not intentional.

After the grand march the young folks removed their masks, and the balance of the evening, and even away into the morning, the youth and beauty assembled, engaged in the delightful pleasure of dancing.

This morning, after paying all expenses there is found to be $75, to be handed the Hospital manager.

The committee who deserve all the credit for the success of the ball are Mrs. Burnet, Misses. Mary and Elizabeth Blanchard and Mary Meek.

A Strong Man

Is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from indigestion or some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs of digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man doesn't feel just right, when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous and irritable, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man needs to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, stimulates the liver, nourishes the nerves, and so gives health and strength to the whole body.

Mr. Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub. Station C, Columbus, Ohio, Box 103, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. The more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I had given up to die. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take my advice and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

The Cambridge Family Semi-Centennial Celebration.

Fifty years, looking forward, seems a long time, but to turn and look backward is, to many of us, as but yesterday, although in that time numerous and great are the changes in our surroundings. Those who were young a half century ago are now old, and since that time there are those who have been ushered into this world that are now men and women.

In 1852 a family by the name of Cambridge located on a farm about two miles above Unionville, and during all the time since then have resided at the same place.

Wednesday, in order to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the event, the survivors invited their friends and neighbors to join with them in a basket picnic at the old homestead. Between three and four hundred persons responded to the invitation and it was a notable day in the history of Buffalo Run and vicinity.

Mr. Henry Earon, who is married to one of the family, occupies the home; the other two survivors, living in the vicinity, are Miss Margaret and Robert, but unfortunately the pleasure of the occasion was marred, to a great extent, by the absence of the latter, he being confined to his home in Unionville by serious illness.

A table had been prepared in the yard which would seat one hundred persons, and this was loaded and unloaded several times before the appetites of the visitors were satisfied, but there was ample provision for everyone.

After dinner the crowd was gathered together and entertained for a while by singing rendered by Miss Daley, a daughter of John A. Daley, of Curtin township, and Miss Hoover, of Fillmore, recited several selections. Then followed congratulatory speeches by Hon. James Schofield, Capt. Hugh S. Taylor, John A. Daley and David Rothrock, all of which were listened to attentively.

Towards evening the guests separated, departing to their homes in various sections of the county, having spent a pleasant day enjoying the society of each other and of their hosts.

For the above information we are indebted to Mrs. Kate Tripple of Spring street, who was present.

Entertained at "The Willows."

Mr. Ollie Campbell, manager of the Central Penna. Telephone exchange at this place, entertained a party of friends Thursday at the beautiful club house known as "The Willows" and located along the placid waters of Spring Creek. Those who were present during the day were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Metcalf, Mrs. Schiffler and Miss Schiffler, of Clearfield; Misses. Lizzie and Nannie Schofield, Esther Campbell, Kathryn Lieb, Marjorie Lieb, Louise Kellerman, Jennie Irwin, Mr. Charles Larimer and Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Campbell.

Another Big Coal Deal.

The Goodyears, whose recent purchase of the Berwind-White shaft and coal territory at DuBois was made public a few days ago have added a second big coal tract by the purchase of over 2,000 acres of valuable coal land in the vicinity of Sykesville.

The company has four drills at work on a tract of land between Sykesville and Big Run, in Henderson township, Jefferson county. It contains over 6,000 acres and a portion of it is known to be underlaid with coal. If the tests prove satisfactory this region will also be added to the holdings of the Goodyears.

—Will Burnside has certainly "got it in the neck" the machinery in that part of his anatomy has failed to act, and he is as dumb as an oyster. We had the pleasure of his society for a short time Thursday and it was real refreshing to be able to do all the talking for once, you can say anything to him and he can't jaw back. He has our best wishes however, for a speedy restoration of his conversational faculties.

—Charles R. Kurtz, in last week's Democrat states that Editor Miller still has "water on the brain" For the information of the public we will state that none of it comes from the new $2100 pump. This pump was not erected to furnish water, but only as a monument to the business sagacity, and supreme wisdom of our Water Committee.

—Prof. Lupton of Leeds, recently declared, before the Institution of Mining Engineers, that the gold held in solution in the oceans of the world amounted to $30,000,000 each, for every man, woman and child on the face of the earth. A method of extraction would certainly prove a profitable invention.

—Modern physiology attributes more than half of the diseases to which man is heir to fatigue. Physiologists say that excessive fatigue is induced by late hours, immoderate brain work and bad air, and that men fail to recuperate because they make no effort to sleep a sufficient number of hours.

—It is announced that an engineer in the Canary Islands has discovered a method of extracting electricity from the atmosphere without the use of chemicals, dynamo or motive force. This is what Franklin did with his kite, but the question arises, is the newly discovered method commercially practicable?

—The "Democrat" wants to know why we called the Central Supply Co's., new wagon a "Jim Dandy" and asks what the term means. Well a "Jim Dandy" is something with wheels, and is neat, natty and nice. We have heard the cognomen applied to Bro. Kurtz many times. Now do you understand?

—It is being generally commented on that the publication of books for girls is diminishing rapidly. The question arises, is the class of books which of recent years has been advertised as "for girls" worthy of support or, are girls of the day reading books which are written for their elders?

—Pressure is being brought to bear on the new Cuban government to permit the establishment of a national lottery. The pressure will prove difficult to resist in view of the great necessity for revenue but past experience should have taught the Cuban authorities the evils of gambling in any form.

—Mr. Jonathan Hutchinson, before the Medico-Chirurgical Society of London, recently advanced the theory that leprosy was produced by eating badly cured fish. His proposition was strongly contested but he advanced proofs which made a strong impression on his hearers.

—According to a late census bulletin the annual cut of lumber in this country has increased in the last ten years from 24,041,673 to 35,084,166 board feet. This is another argument in favor of the establishment of national forest reserves on a liberal scale.

CURES FOR TOOTHACHE.

Remedies That Do Not Appeal to the Ordinary Man Today.

The man in dental anguish sometimes curses with Burns "the venomed stang that shoots his tortured gums alang." Sometimes, on the other hand, he prays. St. Augustine in his "Confessions" relates how he once suffered from "dolor dentium" (toothache), apparently in an aggravated form, for he could not speak. Thereupon he wrote on wax a prayer to God for the other brethren to repeat, and as soon as all were on their knees the pain went. "But what a pain!" he says. "Never since my tender age had I experienced the like." Southey in his "Life of John Wesley" tells of that eminent preacher that when his own tooth ached he prayed and the pain left him.

Unfortunately ordinary men do not seem to have such efficacious faith. When the excruciation begins, they must bear it philosophically, and on Shakespeare's authority toothache finds out just the weak place in the philosopher's armor of patience. In the middle ages the devout who were racked with pain had a special patron to whom they could call for deliverance. St. Apollonia, a martyr under the emperor Philip, among other cruel indignities had her teeth pulled out. In consequence she became toothache's tutelary saint, as her emblems—one of which is "holding a tooth in pinchers"—sufficiently testify.

And there would seem to have been yet another martyr, St. Blaize, who took cognizance of the disease. He was honored in the little town of St. Blazey, in Cornwall, where candles offered upon his altar were supposed to be an infallible cure for toothache.—Chambers' Journal.

GOUGH'S QUICK WIT.

A Retort That Silenced an Interruption In the Audience.

An effort of one of John B. Gough's tours of the west was to arouse his converts to a political movement in favor of prohibition, and in several states the politicians began to give consideration to the cry. The distillers and liquor dealers are said to have been so frightened that they employed men to follow the lecturer, sit among the audience and endeavor to confound him with questions. He had worked a Topeka (Kan.) audience up to a fine pitch of excitement and in his effective manner cried:

"Temperance! Temperance! Temperance! It will mean money in your pocket, clothes on your back, happiness in your home and God in your heart!"

Up leaped one of the paid interrupters and shouted to the audience:

"Money in your pockets! Why, fellow citizens, follow this man's ideas and we'll be all in the poorhouse! Think of the fields of tasseled corn that stretch on every side! Whisky is made from corn. We sell millions of dollars' worth of corn to the whisky makers. Stop the manufacture of whisky, and what'll we do?"

Then, turning to Gough, he went on: "You, Mr. Smarty—what'll we do? Tell us, if prohibition comes, what'll we do with our corn?"

"Raise more hogs, my friend," replied Gough without a second's hesitation—"raise more hogs!"—Philadelphia Times.

BIG TRAIN ROBBERY.

Flyer on Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Held Up.

HIGHWAYMAN SHOT DEAD

Robbers Were Experts and Did Job With Neatness and Dispatch. Getting Away With Six Sacks of Money.

BANDITS PLANNED TO DITCH TRAIN

MT. CARROLL, Ill., Aug. 7.—A daring and successful train robbery occurred at Maricus, on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railway, five miles north of Savanah, about midnight Tuesday night.

The fine vestibuled passenger train of eleven coaches, Conductor Emereon in charge, was flagged at the little station and six masked men boarded the engine. The engineer and fireman obeyed the imperative orders and the robbers at once uncoupled the engine and express car from the train and ran them a quarter of a mile up the track. They then blew up the express car with dynamite, ran the engine north a distance of a mile from Hanover, and, the locomotive becoming dead, the robbers abandoned it and escaped.

One of the highwaymen was killed, being shot above the eye and also in the leg. He met instant death while in the engine and his body was dumped to the ground by his companions as they sped away. The express messenger, William Bye, claims to have done the shooting.

The deed was done quickly, the trainmen and passengers making no defense. Six sacks of money were secured, but the amount is not known. The passengers were not molested.

There was no way of telegraphing news of the hold-up and a flagman walked back and gave the alarm. A special train of citizens and several policemen at once proceeded to the scene, but, as the track runs along the Mississippi and the country is well adapted to a successful flight, the robbers easily escaped.

The work was that of experts, as they went at it coolly and methodically. ○○○

The train attacked is one of the finest in the world and usually carried considerable money, which has been known by the highwaymen.

The dead robber was a stranger in this vicinity. He was a middle-aged man and well dressed. In the pocket was found an Iowa Central mileage credential from Grinnell to Gilman, Ia., issued in the name of A. L. Jacobs.

Four explosions were required to complete the destruction of the safe and the car was badly wrecked. The robbers were eight in number, all masked. They evidently were railroad men, one being a good engineer.

Messenger William Bye fired five shots at the robbers, but without avail, and an attempt was made to blow him up in his car.

The bandits had arranged to ditch the entire train of nine heavily-laden coaches, had not the signal to stop been heeded.

Several passengers in the buffet car, including the porter, were held prisoners during the struggle to crack the safe.

It is thought the dead robber was killed by a comrade by mistake. The body was put on the tender and run by the others a short distance and then thrown into the weeds.

THEY LIKE SLOW WAITERS.

Folks Who Would Rather See and Be Seen Than Eat.

"That woman will make a kick before her order is filled," said a head waiter at an uptown restaurant one evening, pointing to a well dressed woman who sat with an elderly man at one of the small tables in the palm garden.

"How do you know?" the guest asked.

"Well, you see, she comes here to 'rubber,' and she came too early. The only way she can fill time is to find fault with what is being served. We have lots of customers of that kind. They dress up in their very best clothes and come here just before the theater crowd arrives. They come to see and to be seen and care mighty little about what they have to eat.

"It is fun to see the way they kill time when they come early. An old trick is to get a table and then say: 'We won't order yet. We're waiting for some one.' 'Some one' never comes, and finally the order for some raw oysters or a salad is given, and if we serve them quickly the waiter gets a small tip. If the waiter loafs and serves all the others first, his tip is larger. They nibble and fuss over their little luncheon, and the man in the party usually smokes his cigar to the bitter end before the 'rubber party' breaks up. There, I told you that woman would kick. Do you see the club sandwich going back? It is probably too cold or too hot, but it's neither. It is simply too soon. The 'rubber guest' is a great find for the slow waiter. He is the only guest who puts a premium on slow service."—New York Tribune.

The Domestic's Side of It.

"I would much rather work for a family in moderate circumstances than for a rich family," confided a parlor maid. "In a house where there are three servants one gets much better treatment than in one where there are a dozen. Do you know what you eat in a great big millionaire establishment? Why, corned beef and cabbage, chuck roast, beans and potatoes, foods that are good 'fillers,' and for dessert you get boiled rice and for a treat Waldorf-Astoria pudding. Don't you know what Waldorf-Astoria pudding is? That is bread pudding. In a smaller house, where the servants don't number more than two or three, you get ice cream, chicken, rib roasts, fresh vegetables and strawberries. You eat, you see, exactly the same fare that your master does. But in the big place, where the servants number a dozen and where very expensive foods are served every day, it is impossible to let you fare as the head of the house does. It would cost too much money."—Kansas City Journal.

Mythical Horses.

Pegasus ("born near the source of the ocean") was the winged horse of Apollo and the Muses. Bellerophon rode this animal when he charged the Chimera.

Sleipnir ("the black horse of Odin") had eight legs and could carry his master on sea as well as land. This animal is believed to typify the wind, which blows from eight different points.

Al Borak ("the lightning") was the horse commissioned by Gabriel to carry Mohammed to the seventh heaven. He had a human face and the wings of an eagle. Every step he took was equal to the farthest range of human vision.

According to Thessalian legend the first horse was miraculously brought forth by Neptune striking a rock with his trident.

Country Training the Best.

That town life is the worst possible training for young people is proved by history. Nearly all of the great men of the world have come from the farm. The reason is quite plain. The country boy, if he is the right kind of boy, spends his time building himself up mentally and physically. The city boy too often spends his days in idleness and his evenings at saloons and theaters. He is not prepared for the battle of life and is left behind by the country boy.—J. M. Terrell of Marshall, Mo., Before Stonewall Literary Society.

Some of our most important organs—for instance, the heart, the brain and the lungs—are, strange to say, quite insensible to touch, thus showing that not only are nerves necessary for the sensation, but also the special end organs. The curious fact was noticed with the greatest astonishment by Harvey, who, while treating a patient for an abscess that caused a large cavity in his side, found that when he put his fingers into the cavity he could actually take hold of the heart without the patient being in the least aware of what he was doing. This so interested Harvey that he brought King Charles I. to the man's bedside that "he might himself behold and touch so extraordinary a thing."

In certain operations a piece of skin is removed from the forehead to the nose, and it is stated that the patient, oddly enough, feels as if the new nasal part were still in his forehead and may have a headache in his nose. —Chambers' Journal.

In the Same Situation.

A funny story is told about a physician at Monroe City. A resident of the town set out shade trees for the doctor. A short time later the physician was called to attend the mother-in-law of the man who had set out the trees. The old lady died, and the physician presented his bill. After paying it, the citizen thought of the trees and made out and presented a bill for them. "But the trees died," protested the doctor. "So did my mother-in-law," retorted the other man. The doctor paid the bill.—Kansas City Journal.

IGNORANT OF GEOGRAPHY.

How a German Put Posers to an American Girl.

"A thing about Americans which has surprised me more than anything else," said a German artist who has been visiting in New York city for six months past, "is that with all your patriotism you know so little about the geography of your own country, to say nothing of the rest of the world."

There were several Americans in the circle, and they looked rather surprised. None of the men spoke. They knew that they were weak in geography and that here was a challenge which would have to pass.

Not so a bright young woman of twenty, who rushed into the breach with her head in the air.

"We do know the geography of our country," she said decidedly. "Of course we do. Every child learns it in school."

"Might I ask you a question or two?" the foreigner said quietly. "The names of the capitals of some of your states, for instance?"

"Certainly. I'll be glad to answer." And she nodded confidently at the young American man who was already beginning to fear for her.

"What is the capital of Massachusetts?" was his first question.

"Boston!" was the prompt answer from the girl.

"And of North Carolina?"

That seemed to puzzle her a little, and it was a full minute before she answered "Charleston!"

The foreigner smiled, but made no effort to correct her. "What is the highest mountain in the United States?" he asked.

"It's not fair to ask about mountains," she protested. "You said I didn't know the capitals."

"The capital of Illinois is?"

"Chi—Springfield, I mean."

"Of Montana?"

For the life of her she could not think of a town in Montana. "It's been an age since I studied geography," she explained.

"Your answers were better than the average," said the man. "You got one right out of four. As I said, American geography surprises me."—New York Tribune.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

It is safer to prune too little than too much.

Moist earth and a cloudy day for transplanting.

Gooseberries and currants are two easily grown fruits, and there is seldom an oversupply.

The quality and size of fruit on old bushes is much improved by thinning of the fruit or severe pruning.

The cause of moss appearing on the stems of apple and other fruit trees is wet, cold, undrained land or an excessively humid climate.

In saving garden seed gather when ripe. Do not allow it to shell off. The first matured is the best, and the first matured will shell first.

A good mulch around fruit trees helps to keep down weeds, keeps the soil loose, moist and porous at all times, with little labor of cultivation.

The time of setting out of fruit trees is of far less importance than to see that the right varieties are selected, the soil prepared and transplanting well done.

"I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia for several years and often sat down to eat but had to give it up after eating only two bites. I used two bottles of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and am alright to-day. Can now eat anything I want. W. L. Easton, Audubon, Iowa."

It can't help but do you good

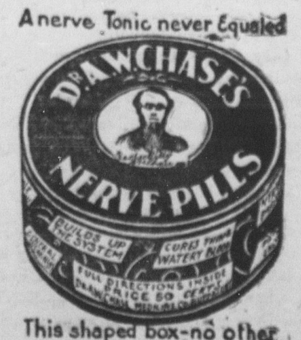
WHY SUFFER WITH NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA?

Nervous dyspepsia is a common trouble now-a-days; differs from common, ordinary, every-day indigestion, only in the cause. Common, old-fashioned indigestion comes from overfeeding, hurried eating, failure to chew the food thoroughly—a greasy, fatty, doughy, pasty diet. Nervous dyspepsia comes from hurry, worry, care, trouble or excess. The stomach nerves are weakened, they fail to regulate the stomach juices; the supply is insufficient; food is not digested; distresses; rests heavy; gets sour; repeats; ferments; gas forms; water brash occurs; the stomach becomes irritable, inflamed, painful, or burns; you grow irritable, nervous, restless, morose, sullen, can't sleep, are hungry and afraid to eat, lose weight and strength. It is here Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing—giving to the nerves a strength they lack, and them to the stomach the power to again properly handle and digest the food; to the system generally a new found strength and vigor—a condition that can be brought about by no other medicine known to science.

Altoona.

Mrs. James Roney, of No. 1717 Sixth avenue, Altoona, Pa, says: "I like Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills very much. I got a box and as I was far from strong and very nervous night times, I could not sleep and the digestion was sluggish. These conditions were removed and I grew strong and steady. I sleep well and the digestion is good again. It is a good medicine.

A nerve Tonic never Equaled



This shaped box-no other

Punxsutawney.

Mrs. Joseph Johns, of Elk Run, Punxsutawney, Pa., says:—I can heartily recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to any one desiring a good, solid nerve tonic. One of my family who was weak, nervous, listless, sleepless and lacked energy, got a box and they acted splendidly, giving sleep, strength, ambition, appetite and generally giving a feeling of life and bouyancy, we think the medicine very fine.

—A horse belonging to M. C. Gephart the piano dealer was killed on Saturday night by falling out of the stable door at Abe Baum's livery stable.

—The Reform congregations of Penns Valley and several other points in the county are holding a re-union in the grove near the Old Fort to-day A large attendance is expected.

—William Doak, of this place, is agent for an excellent camp chair which sells for $5 cents. Anyone desiring to order one for the Business Men's picnic can drop a postal card to Mr. Doak's address and it will be promptly delivered.

—The managers of the Business Mens picnic have made arrangements with a first class caterer to provide for the wants of everyone attending that picnic. There will be no lack of provision and the service will be equal to the occasion.

—Sidney Miller, of Pleasant Gap, met with quite a serious accident Monday morning. He was alighting from a buggy when the horse suddenly started and Miller was thrown to the ground striking on his head and inflicting a severe scalp wound.

—Mrs. Evelyn Rogers, at her handsome home on Allegheny street, entertained a large number of friends on Saturday evening, who were there by invitation, to meet her visitors, Mrs. Harvey Musser of Akron, Ohio and Mr. and Mrs. Huston of Norristown.

—The breaking of an axle of a freight car caused a wreck on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad Friday evening at the rolling mill east of Howard, and blocked the tracks for sometime. None of the train men were injured. The passengers on the evening train were transferred. During the night the tracks were cleared and traffic was resumed.

—A few days ago the Potter-Hoy Hardware Company stored a car load of patent plaster in their new warehouse on West High Street. Monday evening about six o'clock without any warning the floor gave way dumping the whole lot into the cellar, fortunately no one was in the cellar or a serious accident might have been the result.

—Sunday's weather was very unpropitious for the Free Methodist bush meeting at Hunter's Park. Supt. Thomas ran special trains, but as it rained almost the entire day not many availed themselves of the opportunity to go there. The meeting, we understand, will be continued all this week and doubtless many of our Bellefonte people will attend.

—The Patrons of Husbandry of Centre county are putting in a speedway ½ mile in length just west of their picnic ground at Centre Hall. They expect to have it in readiness for their coming encampment. If nothing happens there will be two or three races at the grangers picnic which no doubt will prove a great attraction. If this move on the part of the picnic committee proves popular the course will be made a half mile track before another year.

—Invitations have been received by relatives to the marriage of George Brady Snyder, son of Thompson Snyder, formerly of Eagleville, now residing at State College, and Miss Rebecca Robbins, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Robbins, at the home of the bride's mother in Coatsville, Tuesday, August 19, at 10 a. m. Miss Robbins held the position of instructor in history in the Meyerstown academy, where Mr. Snyder was professor of mathematics during the past year.

—For the benefit of the public we would state that the letters B. M. 22 C. carved on the stone sill in front of the P. R. R. ticket office window at this place, indicate that Bellefonte is 749.37 ft. above the sea level as taken from Sandy Hook. We publish this fact not only for the benefit of the public, but also in order that Ticket Agent H. L. Hutchinson and his able assistant, "Jim" Pletcher, may be relieved of the trouble of answering so many questions in regard to the matter.

—The passenger trains on the Central Railroad of Penn'a are very like time and tide-that is, they wait on no man. Monday morning Mr. Robert H. Sommerville of Winburne, who has been visiting at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. H. Potter, intended to go home on the 7 o'clock train, consequently the family was aroused at an unseemly hour to prepare breakfast for their guest. We saw him and his host moseing along towards the station, and told them they had but little time to make the train. They gave us to understand that they knew what they were doing, and wanted no foreign interference; so we proceeded on our way, and had the satisfaction of seeing the train pull out while the two gentlemen were gesticulating like wild men to have it wait a minute, but it did not wait a little bit. Next time they will pay more attention to what the editor says, for he is generally just about right.

FIRE TUESDAY MORNING.

Joseph Ceaders' Ice Cream Parlor Burned.

At 9:30 Tuesday morning the electric light whistle sounded the alarm of fire and designated South Ward as the scene. In less time than it takes to write the streets were crowded with anxious people to discover the exact location, which proved to be the ice cream parlor and bakery of Joseph Ceaders on Allegheny street. It was but a few moments after the alarm, until both fire engines had arrived on the ground, and in very short time were throwing water, but owing to the construction of the building it was difficult to reach the flames, although they were confined principally to the rear building, which was of frame, the portion facing the street being of stone. The smoke was so dense at times as to make it almost impossible for the firemen to get near enough to work effectively, but they persevered against all obstacles and after one hours hard work had it under control.

The fire originated in the small kitchen at the extreme rear of the building and was caused by a spark or overheated pipe and before it was observed had made so much head way that it was necessary to summon the fire department.

The building belongs to Mr. J. H. Sands and was occupied on the first floor by Joseph Ceaders as confectionery, ice cream parlor and bakery. The second floor being used as lodging rooms. The loss of Mr. Sands on the building is about $1500 fully covered by insurance. Mr. Ceaders' loss is estimated at $1500 which was partially covered by insurance. The furniture, etc., on the second floor was deluged with water the loss being hard to estimate, but will not amount to a great deal.

Our fire department managed the fire finely, and confined the damage to the roof of the front building and succeeded in saving the greater part of the frame building in the rear. Had it been dry and windy the entire portion of town in that locality would have been in danger, as it occured in the congested district. Fortunately no one was injured nor any of the adjoining property affected except, perhaps, by water.

NOTES

Thanks to Providence, there was plenty of water. We observed some of the water committee at the scene of conflagration they were probably trying to make an estimate of how much water was consumed in order to render a bill to the sufferers.

Capt. Hugh S. Taylor was very active in his efforts to save property.

John McSuley, Harry Williams, Paul Fortney, Ben Tate and Jerome Harper distinguished themselves by signal acts of daring.

The poor chappies who occupied the up stairs rooms will have their worldly goods exposed on clothes lines for a few days. These victims are W. N. Haines, C. A. Grabe, George McMunn and Charles Snyder.

Mrs. Sidney Krumrine discovered the fire and gave the first alarm.

Only One Week of Court.

The second week of Court has been discontinued by order of Judge Love. This action was taken at the request of all the attorneys at the bar, who gave as a reason that it is a very busy season for the farmers and is hard to get them to attend as jurors, and also the attorneys themselves need a vacation, their hard work and close confinement is telling on the health of a great number of them, so the Judge out of the kindness of his heart acceded to their wishes and there will be but one week of court.

Services at the Episcopal Church Sunday.

We had the good fortune Sunday morning of listening to an excellent discourse delivered by Rev. George Israel Brown, rector of St. John's P. E. Church.

The sermon was prepared and intended more especially for his own congregation than visitors, but every one was interested and edified by the pertinent truths which were presented in a plain, practical, earnest and tactful manner, and carried the closest attention of the congregation, from beginning to end.

He dwelt at considerable length on the tendency of the times to overlook the sacredness and devotion, which should be observed in church worship, and the disposition to introduce into the pulpit and congregation, methods and practices which might be adapted to the public hall, and scarcely there, but are neither reverent nor appropriate in God's house. All he said was to the point.

We could take no exception to any of the other thoughts advanced by Rev. Brown. They were all appropriate to the occasion, but in the spirit of charity, we yield them to the thoughtful consideration of the members of his parish, for whom they were particularly intended.

We want, however, to publicly and heartily endorse every word he said concerning the reverence and solemnity with which we should approach the presence of our Creator. Certainly we owe at least as much deference and respect when coming before God as suppliants and worshipers, as we do to earthly kings and rulers. No one approaches their presence in the same familiar, flippant manner as do many, in these days, attempt to draw near to God's throne of mercy, nor would we be permitted to do so. There is a certain respect to be shown those in authority which all must observe, and certainly in coming into the presence of God, the King of Kings, the Creator and Ruler, who is far removed from everything earthly, we should do so humbly and reverently.

We hope more of our ministers will try and instruct their congregations that sensationalism in his worship, is displeasing to Him whom we should honor and glorify.

THE FANTASTIC PARADE.

Annual Festival Held by the Pleasant Gap Band a Great Success.

The pretty little town of Pleasant Gap nestling as it does at the foot of Nittany mountain in one of the garden spots of the earth did itself proud on Saturday evening by its big fantastic parade and festival held under the auspices of the Pleasant Gap band.

It is estimated that fully 1500 people attended the festival and witnessed the parade, Bellefonte and the surrounding county sending its full quota.

The fantastic parade took place about half past seven and was almost a mile in length. Each and every feature of the parade was ludicrously funny but probably the greatest hit was George Miller's horseless wagon. There were several floats and all of them showed clearly that much time and engenuity had been spent in getting them up. The parade was headed by chief marshall James Karstetter and the Coleville band. The Pleasant Gap band was also in the parade, all blacked up as darkies, they rode in a big wagon drawn by eight horses, whose driver managed the horses with wonderful skill. After the parade the festival was held and during the evening the Coleville band gave a delightful concert. There were two addresses, one by Capt. H. S. Taylor and the other by Senator W. C. Heinle.

The band realized over $230.00 by the festival and everything passed off smoothly. The committee in charge were: James Karstetter, chairman, John Boal, Ciney Hoy, J. A. Hoover, W. Bodle and Samuel Cole.

Secretary Gamel a Little Behind Time.

Secretary Frank Gamel of the Y. M. C. A. with Edmund Hayes and Charles Miller went on an excursion last Saturday, the objective point being Penns Cave. They were to start on the 6:30 train and go to Spring Mills, but for some unaccountable reason Mr. Gamel did not turn up at the station until the train was crossing the bridge. He blamed the delay on his watch, but we are rather inclined to think his bed was a little too comfortable to get up so early, but being a resourceful gentleman he took his party to the Central train, which left shortly afterwards, and they went to Hecla, and from there walked over the mountain, explored the cave, crossed back again, and returned at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, somewhat used up from their long walk. Next time we advise Mr. Secretary to sleep with an alarm clock under his pillow. Mr. Gamel is keeping our Y. M. C. A. moving right along and up-to-date. He is in close touch with the young men of Bellefonte, who hold him in the highest esteem. The Association has never been as prosperous, nor accomplished as much good as during his administration, and we are fortunate indeed in having such a man at the head of its affairs.

Picnic and Festival.

The Sunday school under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church of Hannah, Centre county, will hold a basket picnic and festival in the grove near the school house on Saturday, the 23d day of August, 1902. During the picnic there will be sold at auction a unique quilt and crazy cushion to the highest bidder. The quilt was pieced by the ladies and each piece has a person's name worked in the patch. There are over 400 names on the quilt. The cushion is novel in its make up. We expect to be favored with both vocal and instrumental music on the grounds. The grounds will be open at 10 a. m. and continue until sundown. The proceeds will go to the building fund of the new church building at Hannah. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. Make this day one of real social worth in meeting friends. By order of

THE LADIES' AID SOCIETY.

Lutheran Harvest Home Service.

The Harvest Home services in the Lutheran church on Sunday were very interesting, the auditorium being handsomely decorated with a fine display of flowers, fruits, grain and all manner of products from the farm. The exercises were adapted to the occasion, special music by the choir being rendered, and an appropriate sermon by the pastor, Rev. H. C. Holloway, D. D., was delivered, in which he reminded his congregation that we owe a debt of gratitude to the God of Harvest for the bounteous crops that have been garnered this year. This beautiful anniversary is observed every year by this congregation and is always made an interesting and instructive service.
